

READING LIST: THE COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION IN ENGLISH (rev. Fall 2005)

This list is arranged according to the three historical periods into which the examination is divided. In studying for the examination, you should not only compare texts within a historical period, but also familiarize yourself with the context in which the texts were produced. You should understand the significance for these texts of historical events, literary movements, nationality, the writer's career, etc. The examination will also require you to answer one theory-based essay question. To familiarize yourself with the terms on the list of terms for the Comprehensive Exam, the Graduate Committee recommends The Bedford Glossary of Critical and Literary Terms.
