About This Course

In January 2001, the Tennessee legislature passed a law requiring divorcing parents of minor children to attend a parent education seminar prior to their divorce being granted. To fulfill this requirement, APSU's Center for Extended and Distance Education is pleased to offer "Parenting and Divorce" to area residents.

Those who take this seminar agree that they want their children to be both physically and mentally healthy during and after the divorce. Since 1990, hundreds of thousands of parents throughout the U.S. have taken this interactive parent education seminar that helps parents accomplish four simple, highly important goals:

1. Strengthening the family unit by focusing on what the children are going through and their feelings of loss.
2. Communicating more effectively with your children and former spouse.
3. Identifying the warning signs of depression and anger in children.
4. Handling the trauma children face during and after divorce or separation.
