

Austin Peay State University Student Employment

Congratulations on starting your new student employment job on campus!

Do you remember your first day at school? Well in many ways you're back there again. A new job means new processes to learn, new people to interact with and new expectations. Austin Peay State University can be a very busy place, and your supervisor will expect you to integrate into the culture of the department quickly. With these tips, you will be more equipped to be successful in your new role while balancing your class load and family or social obligations.

Opportunities of student employment are considered high-impact practices which help you develop skills and qualifications you will need to land a job after graduation. They say you never get a second chance to make a first impression, so this short guide is focused on starting strong in your student employment role. Think of it as a crash course on a few essentials intended to ensure you get off on the right foot in your first month or so.

Key Behaviors – the Dos

There are a few things you need to concentrate on in your first month on the job.

1. Be there and be there on time – One of the simplest steps you can take is to be punctual. This behavior is entirely within your control, and it will be visibly noticed by your supervisor.
 - ▶ At this stage of your career, you want to be building social capital and this is one of the quickest first steps to doing so.
 - ▶ First impressions are hard to change, be willing to take initiative and get to know the team.
2. Dress appropriately – This could reasonably fit as part of giving a good impression, but it's important that you and your appearance fit in with the organization's culture and values. All departments will have certain dress code policies (some relaxed and casual, some more professional that require business casual) and certain standards of professional dress code.
 - ▶ Ask about and learn the expectations of the dress policy for the department or office.
 - ▶ Of course, dress can also vary depending on the role people have to fulfil or if the department or office has specific events that require different dress than a typical day. Again, ask in advance to see if there is an expectation of a different dress code for those days.

3. Listen and take notes – Quite simply write everything down. Your work may be overwhelming at the beginning. People may be telling you a lot of different things, which you'll be expected to remember.
 - ▶ If you don't write it down, you won't remember. There will just be too much to absorb too quickly. So, write it down!
 - ▶ Get yourself a notebook and carry it with you everywhere you go at work. Use it to note down everything: work to do, names (and contact details), deadlines, ideas, etc. It's important to realize how much you are in learning mode in these early days and how much you are learning on the job, as well as skills you are developing that should be documented on your resume.
 - ▶ Immediately this will help you keep yourself organized and avoid forgetting things that need to be done, people you need to deal with and so on.

4. Plan – A properly organized and prioritized To Do list is your best friend.
 - ▶ It's the way you order and organize your work into something manageable. The truth is, if you don't plan, others will plan for you and you will simply end up reacting to and running around after their priorities, not yours.
 - ▶ To begin with you simply need to start daily planning for yourself.
 - ▶ For the moment, at the end of each day sit back for a moment and take the time to put together an outline plan of what's expected of you tomorrow.
 - ▶ In your notebook, you'll be keeping a schedule of all the dates when projects are due or expected so you can keep track of them and pull them into your To Do list for the next day.
 - ▶ As part of this process go through today's list to make sure you've done what you were supposed to do and to carry over anything that didn't get finished today into tomorrow's list.

5. Work to make everyone else around you look good – Forget about yourself for the moment and instead work on the basis that your job is simply to make your boss (and your team of co-workers) look good.
 - ▶ Try to think about what their goals are and how you can support them. Ask yourself:
 - What does your boss want and why?
 - What can you do to help them so you become their team's go-to person for getting things done?
 - ▶ Be proactive: Always look for chances to help and be useful. This will make you stand out and in due course you'll start to be seen as indispensable.
 - ▶ If you focus on serving others you are investing in your social capital, while at the same time helping yourself to learn and develop.
 - ▶ Don't be afraid to ask for help. Yes, as we've covered above you don't want to be bothering people for the same instruction time after time, but if you have a problem you can't solve or aren't sure you have the right answer for, then ask.

6. Seek feedback – Check in with your manager/supervisor on a regular basis to get their view on how you are doing. Your job is to make them look good, so don't you want to know if they feel you have?
 - ▶ Share your To Do list with them at the start of each day. Is it covering everything they need, or is there anything else they want? This helps you ensure you get on the right track and shows them you are being proactive.
 - ▶ Check in with them before you go home to ensure everything's been covered.
 - ▶ Show them your notes/completed work on a regular basis (that in itself is likely to impress them). Ask them whether they feel things have gone right, and whether there's anything you could have done better.

7. Participate – Your work is a social environment, and to be successful you need to understand the culture and build relationships.
 - ▶ There is something to learn from each of the people around you, so dive on in and become part of the team.
 - ▶ If your schedule allows, participate in department events, programming, birthday celebrations, etc.

The Don'ts

If those are the Dos, then there are also clearly some Don'ts that you want to avoid.

1. Gossip/over confide – Neither your manager, nor your co-worker is your best friend (certainly not yet anyway).
 - ▶ So, don't gossip about what you think about other people in the workplace, who you like and who you don't, or over confide about issues at home.
 - ▶ All that's going to do is lead to trouble as what you say is spread around the office, and you don't want to be seen to be a source of trouble, do you?

2. Never forget you are now representing your organization – Your employer is hiring you and certain of your attributes to do a job.
 - ▶ Your private life is your private life, and while it's up to you how you live it, it's not unreasonable for your employer to expect that what you make publicly available shouldn't bring the organization into disrepute.
 - ▶ This is an area where potential conflict may arise in employer/employee relationships, particularly as social norms change.
 - ▶ Never use foul language on the job.
 - ▶ Never physically or verbally assault an employee, visitor, coworker, or anyone, especially in the course of your employment.
 - ▶ Never share confidential information.

3. Don't use social media, your personal phone or complete homework at work – Your employer is likely to have the old-fashioned idea that they've actually hired you to work, unless it's a part of your job functions.
- ▶ That's personal stuff, so keep it for personal time.
 - ▶ Do not work or complete homework on the job unless approved.

Remember, they hired you – that's important!

- ▶ You have been hired. The organization which has employed you spent time, effort, and cold hard cash in looking to find, interview, select and engage someone. Out of all the people that applied, they chose you.
- ▶ So always remember, they've not hired you for the fun of it, they've done so because they have work that needs to be done. They have picked you to do it, and they (particularly the individuals involved in the recruiting process) are invested in you and you making a go of it.
- ▶ After all, having spent all that time, effort and money, don't you think the people who were involved in hiring you are going to want the process to be seen to be successful?
- ▶ If it goes well, they've got bragging rights about what a good choice they made in you haven't they? But if you don't do well, or even leave, then that's a pain for them. Not only might they look bad in front of their colleagues for having got it wrong, but the likelihood is they are going to have to go through the process all over again.

NACE Career Competencies Pre-Assessment and Post-Assessment for Student Employees

All first-year General Campus Student Employees will be required to complete a Career Readiness Competencies Pre-Assessment and Post-Assessment based on the information outlined in this packet.

The Pre-Assessment will allow you to rate yourself in terms of competency level in each Career Readiness area, and then establish a goal to further develop each competency throughout the year. You are encouraged to develop goals that you can work on achieving as part of your Student Employment experience, but these goals can also be achieved in the classroom, through clubs and organizations, projects and presentations, and other employment.

DUE DATE:

Please complete the Pre-Assessment within your first month on the job.

The Post-Assessment will allow you to rate yourself again in terms of competency level in each Career Readiness area, as well as describe the progress you made in achieving your goal for each competency throughout the year. You will be also asked to explain how you applied each Career Competency in your student employment experience. We encourage you to use these statements to update your resume and incorporate into your interview responses when applying for future positions. After completing the Post-Assessment, we encourage you to schedule a meeting with your supervisor to discuss your performance throughout the year, and gain additional feedback on the use of the Career Readiness Competencies in your job.

DUE DATE:

Please complete the Post-Assessment one month prior to the end of your student employment position, or by April 15 of the spring semester.

How to Complete Assessments

Both assessments are available to complete digitally in your Jobs4Govs account. Find linked within your Student Employment pathway under Resources > Pathways on your Jobs4Govs homepage. If you cannot access your pathway, please contact Megan Simpson with Career Services at 931-221-6543 or simpsonm@apsu.edu.
